

Mist

- Literature

On the edge
Mists dwell.

Flying, floating, falling,
So fast it's still.

Illuminating bright,
The great white swell.

Still I cannot see,
And lack the knowing chill.

This world fades away;
The darkness fled that fell.

From dreams I wake to day,
The cliff below remains.